

WOOD QUIRKING WEEKLY

THIS WEEK'S PROJECTS

THE FINISH LINE IS IN SIGHT...

Our wardrobe project is almost complete, and we're finally into the satisfying stage of adding the finishing touches.

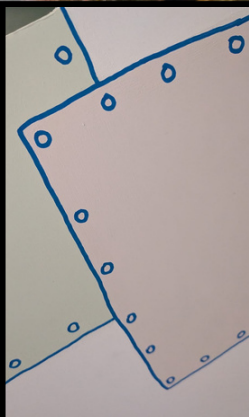

Over the past week we've been carrying out the final repairs and carefully colour matching everything so the finished result blends together seamlessly. It's been a project that's taken plenty of time and patience, but seeing it all come together has made it worthwhile.

There's just a few final details left to complete before we can officially call this one finished, and we can't wait to share the completed transformation with you very soon!

KITCHEN SNEAK PEEK

Dan's Krusty Krab kitchen makeover is almost complete! We're just waiting for a few final touches to arrive before everything can be put together and revealed. In the meantime, we thought we'd share a little sneak peek. We can't wait to show you the finished result!

WE HAVE UPGRADED!

If you've watched any of our recent videos, you'll know that while our enthusiasm may be clear... the audio, unfortunately, has not been!

As we're just starting out, we've been learning as we go, and one thing that's been impossible to ignore is that our sound quality has been, well... atrocious. The good news is we have finally invested in some shiny new laval microphones!

Because we clearly have impeccable taste, we bought pink ones. Obviously, Dan is thrilled by this choice!

Thanks for sticking with us while we find our feet. Every little improvement helps us create better content, and we can't wait for you to hear the difference in our upcoming videos!

PARTY PREP IS UNDERWAY

The party preparations are well and truly underway as we get ready to celebrate our daughter's first birthday with a SpongeBob-themed party!

There's plenty keeping us busy behind the scenes, with signs to paint, banners to make, and lots of little decorations to bring Bikini Bottom to life. It's amazing how much work goes into a first birthday, but we're having so much fun creating everything ourselves. We can't wait to share some photos from the big day!