

WOOD QUIRKING WEEKLY

THE WARDROBE RESTORATION CONTINUES

Work has continued on our ongoing wardrobe restoration, with this week's focus turning to the damaged drawers. After carefully repairing the worn areas, Dan filled the damage and meticulously colour-matched the repairs to blend seamlessly with the original finish.

It's one of those jobs where patience and attention to detail really make all the difference, and it's always satisfying to see the transformation take shape.

If you'd like to see the process, we've shared a video of the repairs across all of our social media channels. Be sure to have a look and let us know what you think!

QUARTERLY CATCH-UP

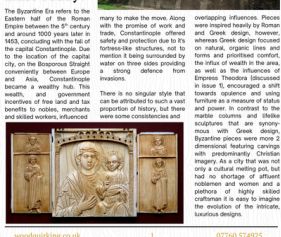

This week we held our quarterly meeting to look back on what's been working, what we'd like to improve, and what exciting projects are coming up next.

It might seem a little over the top for Zoe to organise formal quarterly meetings just for her and Dan... but someone's got to keep him in line!

FRESH LOOK FOR THE FURNITURE FILES

THE FURNITURE FILES

Why Does Next To No Byzantine Furniture Exist Today?

Our history posts have had a bit of a makeover! Each week we'll be publishing a new instalment of The Furniture Files, taking a journey through history to explore how furniture has evolved across different periods, styles and cultures. We hope you'll enjoy following along with the series.

CHARITY SHOP CHALLENGE RESULTS!

The First Charity Shop Challenge Is Here! The full video of our very first Charity Shop Challenge is now live across all of our social media channels!

Dan transformed an old stool and a briefcase into a miniature library. While he wasn't completely thrilled with how the finished piece turned out, he really likes the concept and thinks it's something he'll revisit in the future to create an even better version. We had a lot of fun filming and making this challenge, and we're already looking forward to taking on plenty more in the future. If you haven't watched it yet, we'd love to hear what you think!

The unexpected star of the challenge was the wooden tortoise - now affectionately named Timmy! Timmy was supposed to feature in the build but it seems at some point, he managed to find his way into the bin...

So we have had some comments demanding Timmy be rescued and make a triumphant return! So will Timmy be saved and be featured in a future video? Who knows!
